“ Philip was my Dad, I'm the 3rd child, I have so many memories, but what really stands out for me right now, is when we moved to Elgin, I got to ride in the moving truck with my Dad, just the 2 of us, he told me how nice it was going to be, having a big backyard, and we just talked, he didn't talk to me like I was a kid, he was like that with all kids, and we moved 2 weeks before I turned 6. Also I remember putting my little feet on top of his, and we danced, as I got older, I put my feet on the floor and learned to dance, and I loved dancing, he taught me the polka, and even a waltz, and I loved both, even though then it was way out of style, also right after we moved, my Dad could walk to work, I would be right inside the front door at the time he would walk in and run in his arms and give him a big hug, and I loved swinging, and because he was so tall, he gave the best underdogs, I would swing so high. My Dad also taught me how to measure and saw wood, when to use nails or screws in the wood, I ended up building my own bird house, with a little help from him, and boy could he tell a joke, if you knew him, you know, he also told the best stories that he made up, I'm gonna miss him so much, I Love You Dad ❤️

“ Philip was my Dad. i have fond memories of him teaching me to dance and dancing with him, fishing, and how to play chess. I remember putting up the tent and taking it down with him for our camping trips. We even once had to put it up in the rain. He worked hard to provide for his wife and five children. He even had his own business that he worked at plus working full-time. My mom would help with his business by counting inventory. I worked for his business for a short time wiring the arrows you see on the highways and cleaning circuit boards he would create. He loved us very much and made sacrifices for his family. He shared his love for Jehovah with his family. I followed in his footsteps and continue in my love for our God Jehovah and to serve Jehovah. I will miss my Dad and his love of telling jokes. I love you, Dad.
