“ I just found this and it saddens me deeply. I met Rosa when we lived 2 houses apart and we were about 17-18 years old. In my entire life ive had countless associates but few true friends by how I define friendship, and Rosa was one of those few. Even when she hated my guts at times she was still ride or die my friend. R.I.P. homegirl i hope you are at peace and we meet again someday, but not yet.

“ Aunt Rosa- I wish I had known sooner about everything. The moment I found out I was by your side and I held you till your very last breath. I would give anything to hear your voice, see your smile, hear your laughter that would be so contagious-it would fill the room and cause me to laugh. I miss the little makeovers and shopping trips we use to do. I miss joking with you and mom over the littlest things. I miss your silly dances and the way you smiled and the way you use to carry so much love/ light with you. I wish you didn't leave so soon. I wish you could be here to see your nieces, nephews, and children hit new goals/ milestones. I wish I could have one more day with you. Even then it still wouldn't be enough. I love you so much and I'm so sorry that things turned out the way they did. I still hurt everyday. I still cry everyday. Sometimes, I don't know how I'm going to get through this. I'll miss you and you will always have a place in my heart. Goodbye for now Aunt Rosa. I promise I will see you, grandma, and grandpa again someday. Maybe then we could all be happy again. ”

“~~~~~ Rosa I miss you so much. My heart is broken and everyday that goes by I miss you even more. Your laugh your smile I miss everything about you. I made promises to you before your passing that I will keep. The last few weeks we spent together will always be with me forever. I wish I could have done more. You were so brave and strong all the way till the end. Ty for fighting a little longer for me. Give mom a hug for me and the family tell her and the rest of the family I love them dearly. I was the last person to hear your sweet voice and I listen to the voice mails everyday. Idk how I am going to get over losing you they say it gets easier everyday but not for me. You will be forever in my heart. I'm having a diamond made from your ashes so you will be with me forever. I'm helping dad get through the pain of losing his baby girl. He misses you so much. Please look down on us from time to time. I love you always and forever your brother Daniel ~~~~~
